20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

The purposes of the Committee are to give telecommunications industry leaders the opportunity to provide recommendations to the FCC and to the telecommunications industry that, if implemented, would under all reasonably foreseeable circumstances assure optimal reliability and interoperability of wireless, wireline, satellite, and cable and wireless public telecommunications networks. This includes facilitating the reliability, robustness, security, and interoperability of public telecommunications networks. The scope encompasses recommendations that would ensure the security and sustainability of public telecommunications networks throughout the United States; ensure the availability of adequate public telecommunications capacity during events or periods of exceptional stress due to natural disaster, terrorist attacks or similar occurrences; and facilitating the rapid restoration of telecommunications services in the event of widespread or major disruptions in the provision of telecommunications services. The Committee will address topics in these areas.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The Council includes representatives of all segments of the telecommunications industry. Its members represent large and small telecommunications consumers, local and interstate carriers, state regulators, equipment and software manufacturers, satellite companies, cable companies, internet service providers, wireless companies and research organizations, among others.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The Council will typically meet at least twice a year to ensure progress and to consider the recommendations of its informal focus groups, which meet much more frequently. The Council meetings ensure the awareness and involvement of the entire industry at the highest level of management.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

No other industry group is concentrating on the Commission's oversight responsibilities in these areas. Active cooperation is absolutely essential at the highest levels in this highly competitive, complex and diverse membership group that comprises the telecommunications industry. The tension between competition and cooperation can only be resolved in this manner. The Commission, on its own, lacks the resources necessary to manage the many networks involved in these issues and must rely on this cooperative mechanism.

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

N/A
