20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

The Committee provides recommendations to the FCC to facilitate establishment of a regulatory framework for: (1) an operational plan to achieve national interoperability that includes a shared or priority system among users of the interoperability spectrum (i.e., spectrum in the 700 MHz band specifically designated for both day-to-day and emergency operations) and, in this connection, recommendations regarding Federal Government users' access to the interoperability spectrum; (2) technical standards to achieve full interoperability and network integration, including digital modulation, trunking, and receiver standards, network redundancy/reliability, and whatever other technical capabilities are found necessary to provide local, state, and federal governments with an interoperable network to meet public safety needs into the next century. All technical standards recommended (a) were developed under the standard-setting processes so accredited by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and submitted by September 28, 2002 and (b) may incorporate proprietary data provided such incorporation is in accordance with ANSI procedures; (3) the development of coordinated regional plans; and (4) other technology, telecommunications, and public policy matters that relate to the expedited planning and deployment of a nationwide interoperable and reliable public safety and emergency responsiveness network.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The Committee has an open membership and includes approximately four hundred participants who have expressed an interest in the NCC. All meetings are announced in advance and are widely publicized, including being placed on an internet website. Membership includes representatives of competing industry sectors as well as local, state, and federal government agencies and scientific and technical organizations.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The Committee as a whole meets when the work product of its Subcommittees and working groups is mature for approval or when other business so requires.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

The Committee offers the only open forum for discussion of the means to eliminate problems of safety and inefficiency that occur because of the lack of communications system interoperability, i.e., problems that originate because users are operating on different bands using incompatible equipment and thus are unable to intercommunicate. The Committee has the ability to prepare studies, offer preliminary views, proposals, and other contributions so that it can respond to technical developments and other considerations. The Commission does not necessarily have all of the expertise or the resources necessary to competently, timely, and effectively accomplish the tasks without direct and ongoing input from experts, from potentially affected users of the spectrum, and from manufacturers of equipment.

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

N/A

21. Remarks

The NCC is supported by three subcommittees: (1) Interoperability, (2) Technology, and (3) Implementation. Each subcommittee includes various working groups. Their work is critical to the NCC achieving its goals as outlined in The Development of Operational, Technical, and Spectrum Requirements For Meeting Federal, State and Local Public Safety Agency Communication Requirements Through the Year 2010 and Establishment of Rules and Requirements for Priority Access Service, WT Docket No. 96-86, First Report and Order and Third Notice of Proposed Rule Making, 14 FCC Rcd 152 (1998). Also, the membership of the NCC represents individuals who have expressed an interest in being associated with the advisory committee, regardless of whether they are able to attend the meetings. Consequently, in the membership section of this annual report, committee members do not have a specific start or end date. In addition to the persons listed below, various FCC staff provide support for the NCC's ongoing functions.

Narrative Description

The Federal Communications Commission is reviewing its 700 MHz bandwidth to determine how it would accommodate new and unanticipated developments in technology and equipment, and provide spectrum management and planning mechanisms necessary to develop multiple user public safety communications systems. This task is consistent with the agency's mission to developing a national interoperability plan.
