20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

The purpose of the Commission was to provided the Secretary of State informed advice and recommendations concerning international human rights matters. The Commission examined matters pertaining to human rights and proposed reforms of human rights examining where it had departed from our nation's founding principles and the internationalization of those principles in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

Other interested experts, advisors, parties, agencies, and interagency committees and groups of the United States Government, foreign governments, and with national and international private sector organizations and individuals were consulted by the Commission, as the Department of State decided were necessary or desirable. The Commission was composed of no more than fifteen qualified members with backgrounds in international law, human rights, and religious liberties. The membership was a bi-partisan, diverse group of men and women.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

There were no meetings in FY 2021 as the Committee terminated January 14, 2021.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

The recommendations from the Commission's membership were gathered from expert witnesses and from the public. Because it was not bound by specific policy considerations, it was allowed to operate at the level of principle.

20e. Why is it necessary to close and/or partially closed committee meetings?

NA

21. Remarks

The committee did not meet in FY 21 due to termination.

What is the approximate Number of recommendations produced by this committee for the life of the committee?

0

Number of Recommendations Comments

While no specific policy recommendations were made, the Commission's Report was divided into five sections, ending with twelve "concluding observations": 1. It is urgent to champion human rights in foreign policy. 2. The power of example is enormous. 3. Human rights are universal and indivisible. 4. The universality and indivisibility of human rights do not mean uniformity in bringing them to life. 5. A degree of pluralism in respecting human rights does not imply cultural relativism. 6. Nation-states have some leeway to base their human rights policy on their own distinctive national traditions. 7. Although human rights are interdependent and indivisible, certain distinctions among them are inherent in the Universal Declaration itself, as well as in the positive law of human rights that follows from the UDHR. 8. Freedom, democracy, and human rights are indissolubly linked. 9. Social and economic rights are essential to a comprehensive foreign policy. 10. New claims of rights must be carefully considered. 11. National sovereignty is vital to securing human rights. 12. The seedbeds of human rights must be cultivated.
